Workshop Abstract

Land transportation safety is a major concern for the international energy business. Statistics show that 27% of the fatal accidents which affected our industry worldwide over the 5 year period 2003–2008 were the direct result of vehicle accidents (the highest single contributor to fatalities). Furthermore, the incidence of land transportation accidents in the Middle East and North Africa region is higher than anywhere else in the world. Land transportation accidents are avoidable, usually by very simple and cost effective measures. In fact, most measures cost nothing other than a change in attitude or behaviours. Up to 95% of all land transportation accidents are caused by human error, or to put this in another way, inappropriate behaviours on the part of drivers, passengers and pedestrians.

Typical common examples are: not wearing a seat belt; inappropriate speed; disregard of weather conditions or terrain; dangerous manoeuvres, fatigue and distraction. By means of a few simple changes in behavior all of these accidents can be prevented. Greater care and attention, defensive driver training, taking frequent rest breaks, driving in line with the terrain, weather conditions and speed limits, all of these measures are simple and effective in reducing land transportation accidents. Technology is now at a level where there is no excuse for accidents. Vehicles are constructed in a way which provides protection to the occupants, tyres and brakes are better than ever before, protective air bags can be fitted, seat belts are universal and in-vehicle monitoring systems are gaining widespread use, particularly for driving in remote areas. In short, there is no excuse for land transportation accidents but they still occur at an alarming rate. Therefore this important SPE workshop will examine all of the issues around this subject with a view to highlighting effective prevention strategies. This participative workshop is an important step on the road to accident prevention.

Sponsorship Support

Sponsorship support helps offset the cost of producing workshops and allows SPE to keep the attendance price within reach of operations-level individuals, those who benefit most from these technical workshops.

Sponsors benefit both directly and indirectly by having their names associated with a specific workshop.

While SPE prohibits any type of commercialism within the workshop hall itself, the society recognises that sponsoring companies offer valuable information to attendees outside the technical sessions.

Sponsorship Categories

Workshop sponsorship: USD 5,000
The sponsorship package for this workshop has been designed to offer equal opportunity, maximum exposure and visibility for organisations in the energy industry.

Sponsorship Benefits

- Company name and logo displayed on common slide between the sessions
- Prominent logo on sponsorship acknowledgement displays
- Company logo and sponsorship title plus a link included on the SPE website under "event sponsors"
- Verbal acknowledgment at the beginning of the technical programme
- Acknowledgment in the sponsors' page in the delegate packs
- Your company logo will be displayed on the gifts in conjunction with the SPE logo and in the delegate information packs

Workshops maximise the exchange of ideas among attendees and presenters through brief technical presentations followed by extended Q&A sessions. Focused topics attract an informed audience eager to discuss issues critical to advancing both technology and best practices. The majority of the presentations are in the form of case studies, highlighting achievements and lessons learnt. In order to stimulate frank discussion, no proceedings are published and the press is not invited to attend.

Documentation

- Proceedings will not be published; therefore, formal papers and handouts are not expected from speakers.
- Work in progress, new ideas, and interesting projects are sought.
