- Mining
- Regulators and Legislation

As we enter a new phase of Energy Transformation (EX) and Digital Transformation (DX) in parallel, the integration of operations and safety will be just as important as ever due to the evolving landscape. While each discipline has its own merits, we have seen that traditionally, the practice of operations, HSE, technical, asset integrity, and process safety each focus solely on their own areas, sometimes at the neglect of others. This has led to the silo effect, leading to gaps in how each discipline holistically manages risks within the industry.

Despite lessons learnt and collated for many years, from many different industries (not only energy / oil and gas), such as mining, chemical processing (petrochemical / refinery), aviation, nuclear, and military, we have yet to succeed in changing our image and understanding the value we provide to society as a whole. This is largely because we still have significant risk exposure, leading to regularly occurring incidents which could have been prevented.

Addressing these challenges in in the 21st century requires us to look at all aspects of safety, health, environment, security, and integrity as integral to operations and performance, and we must increase cross-collaboration amongst these disciplines. Moreover, our ability to attract and retain the current and next generation of workers and industry leaders hinges on our ability to display not only the benefit this industry provides to global society, but the practices and open sharing of information which can make this possible.

Workshop Objectives

The goal of this workshop is to present a unified, integrative view of all aspects of safety, both operational and technical perspectives, and further explore the synergies between them. This is the chance for us to hear and discuss challenges, issues, and proposed solutions from operators, contractors and service companies, regulatory bodies, and academics, with a regional perspective. Topics will address how developed and emerging countries in Asia Pacific will account for a very significant proportion of global energy supplies throughout the remainder of the 21st century, and how we can meet those needs safely. Our collective objectives here will be to:

- Listen to and Understand the key challenges and issues facing our people and organisations in this region
- Collaborate and Communicate the experiences and lessons learnt gained from these key challenges and issues
- Propose Recommendations to companies attending the workshop, for further consideration within their own organisations

TUESDAY, 23 AUGUST 2022
13:00-13:10 hours	Welcome Remarks by Co-Chairs
13:10-13:20 hours	Keynote Address
1345 - 1430 hours	Session 1: Panel Session - Human Factors and Performance Session Chairpersons: Siti Fatimah Abdul Aziz, Schlumberger WTA (M) Sdn. Bhd; Diah Kusumawati, PERTAMINA Internasional EP Human factors refer to environmental, organisational and job factors, and individual characteristics, which may influence their behaviour at work and affect health and safety. These include three interrelated aspects that must be considered: the job, the individual, and the organisation. What may be a good system of work in one part of an organisation, may be less than ideal in other parts, for a region where culturally driven attitudes towards risk management may be significantly different. Human factors analysis focuses on how these interactions contribute towards the creation of a safe workplace. This session will discuss how human factors can affect an organisation's performance.
1430 - 1500 hours	Networking Break

1500 - 1630 hours	Session 2: Operational and Occupational Safety Chairperson: Richard Mapus, PETRONAS Operational and occupational safety in the oil and gas industry continue to be a major focus. Safety incident preventions are important to ensure business profitability, sustainability, and to demonstrate duty-of-care. This session will discuss what more can be done to improve operational and occupational safety results. Topics to be discussed include, but are not limited to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • New technology and robotics • New way of doing things safely • New way of managing and executing projects • New way of building workers' competency and discipline Participants will be able gain knowledge on the above topics and equip themselves to positively impact operational and occupational safety.

WEDNESDAY, 24 AUGUST 2022

1300 - 1430 hours

Session 3: Digitalisation and Digitisation
Session Managers: Frank Walsh, Minara Resources Pty. Ltd.; Siti Fatimah Abdul Aziz, Schlumberger WTA (M) Sdn. Bhd.

With game-changing support of advances in digitalisation, organisations are improving health and safety in the workplace by leaps and bounds. The biggest impact of digitisation can be seen in how it can revolutionise engagement, which ultimately underpins the success and effectiveness of any health and safety program.

Digital ways-of-working are improving how organisations identify the critical areas to focus on, how messages are communicated, and how the information is understood, accepted, and demonstrated through changed behaviours.

While traditional paper-based or face-to-face methods are still valid approaches to achieve these outcomes, many leaders are now also looking to 'digital' as a viable alternative.

This session will discuss embracing digitalisation and digitisation as a fundamental part of an organisation's HSE strategy in identifying roadblocks and driving a positive change in culture by bringing health and safety to the forefront of people's minds and actions.

Session 4: Technical and Asset Integrity
Session Managers: Haironi Talib, JX Nippon Oil & Gas Exploration (Malaysia) Limited; Suryani, PT PERTAMINA

The current economic climate and sustainability pressure are forcing oil and gas operators to work their ageing assets hard. But in the drive to achieve sustained operational excellence and protect margins, a reliance on traditional asset integrity methods is hindering maintenance programmes and risking HSE standards.

This session will discuss the integration of HSE with technical and asset integrity for a safer, more sustainable work environment.

Session 5: Process Safety
Session Managers: Mohd Faisal Rameli, PETRONAS Carigali Sdn. Bhd.; Yulia Tirtasiwi Sekti, PT Pertamina Hulu Mahakam

Process safety is part of safety management and focuses on the concerns of major hazards impacting safety, environmental damage, and business losses. In the beginning of 2020 as the COVID-19 pandemic conditions escalated, it was a challenge to maintain the "license-to-operate" in ensuring no harm to people, environment, asset, and reputation. Despite most of the world being shut down to contain the spread of COVID-19, the energy sector continued operating to fuel the world's energy needs. Operating under duress with restricted movement, border closing, work from home and more, organisations had to maintain process safety management systems as per regulatory standards, to continue operating safely.

This session will discuss case studies on issues, challenges, and lessons learnt from sustaining process safety management systems and initiatives for operational efficiency and optimisation in pandemic period, such as:

- Process safety fundamentals
- Major accident hazard scenarios
- Critical safety elements
- Barrier management, mechanical integrity, and more

The new ways of working and rate of adoption within organisations post-pandemic, from leadership level down to frontliners will also be discussed.

1500 - 1630 hours

Session 6: Panel Session - Collaboration and Coordination
Session Managers: Eric Roth, INPEX; Richard Mapus, PETRONAS

No organisation runs successfully without collaboration and coordination in the workplace. These two elements are catalysts to successful HSE programme implementation. Collaboration and coordination in the workplace involve individuals working together to solve problems across departments, management levels, and functions. This panel session will discuss and share collaboration and coordination strategies to achieve operational excellence in the workplace.
